EDUCATIONAL ESTABLISHMENT FOR YOUNG LADIES.

CONGREGATION DE NOTRE DAME,
GLOUCESTER STREET, OTTAWA, ONT.

Fifteen years ago, the daughters of the Venerable Margaret Bourgeois first opened their classes to the young ladies of Ottawa, and the marked success which has attended their efforts shows that here, as elsewhere, this long established and widely known institution has been fully appreciated. In the following pages, we propose giving a slight retrospect of the past, full details of the work to be done by the pupils during the scholastic year, and every information necessary to parents and guardians. Those who really desire the solid progress of their daughters or wards, will please pay special attention to the remarks on page 25.

Congregation de Notre Dame

(As described by a Visitor in 1879.)

CONGREGATION DE NOTRE DAME.

THIS handsome and commodious building, occupied by the above Order, stands at the corner of Metcalfe and Gloucester streets. It is justly noted as an educational establishment of the first order. That it should be this, is not any matter for especial wonder, it representing the oldest educational establishment in Canada. At present we have not very much that is old in this country, save such institutions and customs as we hold in unbroken continuity by virtue of our connection with the Mother Country; but it seems, when we give our consideration to this school, that there are some things old and venerable in a local sense. There are few institutions in Canada whose authorities can point to the year 1656 and say, "That was the year of our foundation;" yet it was the year of the foundation of the Congregation de Notre Dame, a French lady, the venerable Margaret Bourgeois, having instituted it at the date mentioned. So considerable was its success and so great its use, that it rapidly extended its field of labour, and in the year 1868 it was introduced into Ottawa by the Rev. Father Collins, the Parish Priest of St. Patrick's. The institution was taken at once under the patronage of the Rt. Rev. Dr. Guigues, the then Bishop of Ottawa, and has from that time proved of the first value as an educational establishment. In a material sense the building is worthy of the utmost admiration. The architectural design is of a very praiseworthy character. The most critical could scarcely find a flaw in the arrangements made for the due conservation of the health of the inmates. The rooms are lofty and the ventilation is perfect. Nothing is left undone in the direction of obtaining the most perfect system of sanitation. The physical comfort of the pupils is carefully looked to. The dormitories are perfect in arrangement. The class rooms are well lighted and arranged, and the division of the establishment into its several scholastic branches is most skilful. The music room is a very fine one, measuring one hundred feet by fifty. The Chapel is a very striking piece of architecture, the white marble altar being especially beautiful. Under the direction of some twenty members of the oldest religious community in Canada, the mental needs of the pupils are most carefully tended. Not alone does the Superior confine the attention of the pupils to the gentler branches of education, but with great wisdom causes them to be trained in such matters as will be calculated to make them good wives and mothers. Thus every branch of useful household economy enters into the curriculum. In the words of one of the teachers, the object of the School is to "aim at giving such instruction to the students that they can go into the kitchen and cook a dinner, and from thence to the drawing room and entertain their guests."

PROSPECTUS FOR 1883-84.

The house, which is being entirely renovated and fitted up with new heating apparatus, is unsurpassed for comfort and elegance. The lofty and perfectly ventilated study halls, class rooms and dormitories are the constant admiration of every visitor, while the Chapel is truly magnificent.

The pupils are trained in the most thorough manner by competent teachers, in every useful and ornamental accomplishment, but as it is the aim of the Sisters of the Congregation to give a truly practical education, special attention is given to the Art of Housekeeping, which is taught in all its branches. See page 16.

The most vigilant care is exercised over the health of the pupils, regular daily out-door exercise and recreation being obligatory. A cosy little infirmary is reserved for transient indispositions, and a physician is in attendance when required.

The strictest attention is paid to young ladies who may have neglected their studies. In a word, nothing is left undone to promote the best interests of all and insure a rapid progress in learning.

No pupil admitted without a recommendation. No distinction made in the admission of young ladies of any denomination, and no undue influence exercised over the religious opinions of the non-Catholic pupils; however, for the maintenance of order, all are required to conform to the external discipline of the house.

The French and English languages being equally used in familiar conversation, and the best literature of each carefully studied, a classic and idiomatic knowledge of both is thereby ensured.

The course of study is complete, and the Gold Medal and Diploma of the Institution are conferred on the young lady who graduates.

The correspondence of the pupils is under the supervision of the Mother Superior. Thursday and Sunday afternoons are appointed to receive visits from parents, guardians and relations of the young ladies.

Parents wishing their children to be furnished with clothes, books, stationery, materials for drawing and fancy work, should deposit funds in the hands of the Mother Superior for that purpose.

The scholastic year is divided into two sessions, beginning respectively with September and February.

✦ SPECIAL ✦ REMARKS. ✦

(To Parents and Guardians.)

Pupils should be in attendance on the very first day after each vacation. Year after year the most unsatisfactory results have followed the non-compliance with this rule, for, at those periods, a re-classification takes place and supplementary instruction is imparted, which cannot be repeated without great loss of precious time to both teachers and pupils.

Except in cases of absolute necessity, no visits home will be permitted. Parents who really desire the improvement of their daughters will appreciate the importance of this regulation and will aid in rigidly enforcing it.

Thursday and Sunday afternoons the pupils are allowed to receive visits from their parents. It should be borne in mind that visits on any other day must prove detrimental to the pupils, since either study or some other duty must be thereby interrupted.

Payments for board, tuition, books, needlework, etc., invariably in advance.

Pupils are strictly forbidden to lend, borrow or exchange personal effects of any kind ; to take or send out letters or messages for each other.

Every Saturday evening, the marks of the week for Deportment and Application are read in presence of the Mother Superior, all the teachers and pupils, and the Distinction of Honour presented to those who have attained the requisite percentage. This Distinction is worn on Thursdays, Sundays and other festival days. To parents who reside at a distance a monthly card will be sent.
